Formal Protest Is Made

By United States Government; Accuse Yugoslavia of Disregarding Rules

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP)—The United States government, in a formal protest today, accused Yugoslavia of "disregard" of Allied military regulations in Trieste and of spreading "mischievous propaganda."

In a note over the signature of Undersecretary Will Clayton, the State Department acknowledged that American military authorities in Venezia Giulia had detained six Yugoslav soldiers on Sept. 9 and said they were found carrying hand grenades concealed in their clothing contrary to regulations.

The soldiers, about whom the Yugoslav government protested, have since been released.

The note, one of a number between the two governments on various incidents, informed Yugoslavia that the arrest had been investigated by an American military board of officers which found that the action was "justified."

Guarding Supplies

The arrested six soldiers were guarding UNRRA supplies in Trieste near a point where a large explosion had just occurred. The note said the soldiers were searched and found to be carrying hand grenades in their clothing despite instruction that UNRRA guards were not to be armed.

The department's note said that investigation showed that the Yugoslav soldiers apparently were not connected with the explosion and that they were escorted to the headquarters of the Yugoslav detachment in Venezia Giulia two days later with instructions that TRIESTE, Sept. 30—(AP)—A group of Trieste civilians identified by investigation officers as "pro-Yugoslav Italian Communists" ambushed and stoned 10 American soldiers here last night, it was disclosed today.

Pfc. Raymond L. Rowe of Alhambra, Calif., was hospitalized and several other soldiers were bruised, including Pvt. Jerome G. Gurskie of Shamokin, Pa., who was the first of the group to be attacked.

Seven civilians were arrested. Gurskie identified all of them as having been in the group of 25 or more who waylaid the soldiers just before midnight, as the soldiers proceeded toward their barracks.

they were sent out of the zone for violation of the standing orders against carrying weapons.

Yugoslav Protest

Yugoslavia enter a protest on Sept. 16.

"The government of xxx Yugoslavia," said the American note, "must have been aware at the time its protest was addressed to this government, that the six Yugoslav soldiers had been released to the Yugoslav military authorities in zone A despite their violation of military orders, and this government is therefore unable to see any basis for a Yugoslav protest in this case."

"Instead, it appears that this government must protest once again the disregard shown by officers and men of the Yugoslav detachment in zone A for Allied military regulations in that area."

Students Killed in Plane Crash

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Sept. 30—(AP)—Two Southeast Missouri State College students were killed yesterday as their two-seater plane crashed in Ellis park, seven miles west of here.

The victims were J. W. Gerhardt, Jr., 25, son of a Cape Girardeau construction company owner, and Warren Ware, 25, of Chicago.

Witnesses said the plane, which had taken off from a landing strip here, crashed after striking a tree top. It did not burn, but the victims had to be cut from the wreckage.

Unknown Hero

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—(AP)—Joseph Tasso dropped his one-year-old son, James, about 12 feet from a front window of his apartment into the arms of a passing stranger yesterday, then turned and extinguished flames that had enveloped his wife's clothing when cleaning fluid ignited.

The baby was returned unharmed, but when Tasso tried to express to the "baby catcher," the stranger had modestly departed.

Cupid Goes Farming

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 30—(AP)—Cupid bow mouth makeup is passe and the proper style now is the "watermelon" or wide mouth type, a fashion coordinator says. Gail, of New York, told a local beauty trade show audience yesterday that "the Cupid bow mouth makeup is definitely out of the picture this season. The correct mouth makeup calls for the watermelon, or wide mouth type."

American Legion Meets, But Somehow Things are Different

By B. L. Livingstone
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30—(AP)—The American Legion—the lusty, boisterous, roistering legion—rolled out the barrel with a will today for its first big-time get-together since Pearl Harbor.

But things weren't the same, somehow. For one thing, no one had thrown a piano out of a hotel window yet. Still, it was early. Then there was the faint air of wistfulness which this year set apart the old legion of the graying hair and the comfortable paunch.

The familiar trappings were there, and the horseplay. It was just that old heroes had given way to new ones.

The new legion was younger, its hair still unmarked by gray, its memories fresher—and more serious. It out-numbered the old legion two to one. And it was pretty concerned about things like atomic energy, housing, and getting a business start.

A greater part of the new legion hadn't even been born when the old legion was making history at places known in the book as the Argonne and Chateau Thierry.

More Price Controls Off

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—(AP)—Wrought iron and aluminum furniture went free of price controls today, along with certain accessories for hospital beds.

OPA said the items are not important to business or living costs.

Death Comes To Mrs. Walch Early Today

Life Long Member Episcopal Church; Funeral Wednesday

Mrs. Martha Inge Walch, wife of Harry W. Walch, 711 West Broadway, died at 5:30 o'clock this morning at the John H. Bothwell Memorial hospital. She had been ill several months.

Mrs. Walch was born May 17, 1910, at the above address on Broadway, which was then the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Stanley. She was a daughter of the late Harold H. Inge and Ada Stanley Inge.

Receiving her early education in Sedalia Mrs. Walch, after being graduated from Smith-Cotton high school, attended Bradford Junior College, Bradford, Mass. for two years, and completing the course there went to Palo Alto, Calif., attended and was graduated from Stanford University. She became a member of the Pi Beta Phi sorority while there.

Her marriage to Mr. Walch took place on her birthday, May 17, 1933, at the home of her grandparents, which has been the home of her own family for several years.

Led An Active Life
Mrs. Walch was a faithful lifelong member of Calvary Episcopal church, and for a number of years taught a Sunday school class. Until her recent illness she was not only active in her church work, but held office in the Parent-Teacher Association of Mark Twain school, was a member of the Country Club and Sorosis and was sponsor of the establishment of the Mark Twain kindergarten and gave much of her time to this. Her devotion to her family was outstanding and with the many interests in her life she was never too busy to be a real companion as well as mother to her four sons.

Mrs. Walch was one of the first two girls in Sedalia to receive the Golden Eagle, highest award attainable for a Girl Scout. Outgrowing the Scout age she became one of the leaders and was at first in charge of Girl Scout troops, later the Cub troops and Brownies.

Her grandfather, Mr. A. D. Stanley, was for many years president of the Sedalia Democrat Company, and Mrs. Walch since the death of her mother, in 1932, has been associated with the company as a stockholder.

Surviving are her husband and four sons, William Stanley Walch, Charles Frederick Walch, Anthony Patrick Walch and Theodore Lawrence Walch, all of the home and her grandmother, Mrs. George W. Inge, Marian, Va. Mrs. Genevieve Stanley O'Maley, wife of Robert G. O'Maley and Miss Janet Stanley, both of Kansas City, are cousins. Mrs. Walch was a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Trader.

Funeral Wednesday

Funeral services will be held at Calvary Episcopal church at 11:00 o'clock Wednesday morning, the rites to be conducted by the rector, The Rev. James E. Merrick. Pallbearers will be: J. O. Latimer, Jr., William Schien, Stanley Breitweiser, George H. Scruton, Harvey L. Keens and Fred Lange. The body will be taken from the McLaughlin chapel to the family home Tuesday afternoon.

Renovating Truman Home

LAMAR, Mo., Sept. 30—(AP)—The modest five-room frame house where President Truman was born is being renovated for the benefit of tourists and visitors.

Everett M. Earp, owner of the place, is having the roof repaired and the place painted. In the front yard by the pine tree which the parents are said to have planted the day their son was born, Earp is placing a sign carrying the inscription "Harry S. Truman Shrine." No major changes are planned in the home.

"As a lifelong Democrat, from a family of lifelong Democrats," Earp said, "I'm naturally proud to own the birthplace of our president Democratic president."

President Truman spent the first two years of his life in the home.

Earp, a real estate dealer, also is chief constable, a job he has held for 16 years.

A Different Language

It called the old legion "Mister" and "Sir", and spoke familiarly of Iwo, the Canal, Anzio, Cassino, and Omaha Beach. It talked about Gooks and Fuzzy-Wuzzies, jungle rot, and K rations.

The old legion brought out its medals, its Croix de Guerre. The new legion had its lettuce and its spam ribbons. But it all looked good over left breast pockets, Croix de Guerre and spam ribbons alike.

The old legion of the rolled puttees, the Springfield 1908, and the Jenny had a bad time coping with triangular divisions, the M-1, rocket ships, and the P-80—and have you really heard a tanker talk about Patton's armor?

The corridor of years back to 1918 was nostalgic magic to the old legion, but a corridor closed to the new legion by the passage of 28 years. And Okinawa was just yesterday.

They rolled out the barrel in San Francisco today for the first big-time legion get-together since Pearl Harbor.

But, somehow, things just weren't the same....

Travelogue of Western Trip For Rotarians

Ray Sweeney of Warrensburg Is the Speaker

The Rotary meeting was held today at noon at the Bothwell hotel with Hal Sweeney of Warrensburg as guest speaker giving a travelogue of a trip to California.

"Thousands of others have done the same thing," said Lt. Col. John S. Dwinell, of Brooklyn, N. Y., in his closing appeal for mercy. "It is unjust to point the finger at this woman and say 'You will now pay the penalty for something that the whole world knows many people have done with impunity.'"

Mrs. Durant had refused to testify concerning the theft and neither admitted nor denied during the trial that she took the jewels, some of which were found in the home of her sister in Hudson, Wis.

The court, however, accepted as evidence a statement she signed upon her arrest, saying she took possession of the jewels secretly when they were found buried under a castle floor. The statement said she helped smuggle the gems to the United States.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—(AP)—That nickel air mail stamp becomes good at midnight tonight.

Gael Sullivan, second assistant postmaster general, predicted the result will be more than a four-fold increase in the number of commercial planes by 1948.

Declaring that with the new five cent an ounce rate air mail volume will jump to "unprecedented heights," Sullivan told a reporter:

"Today we have 700 commercial planes carrying mail. We'll need 3,000 by 1948."

Sullivan said that last year about one out of every 15 non-local letter traveled by air. A year from now he expects the ratio to be one of every three.

The stamps to be in use after midnight tonight are now on sale at the Sedalia postoffice and the branch offices. They are for use in the United States, Hawaii, Porto Rico, Canton Isle, Canal Zone, and other places including Canada.

Mort Cooper is a Better Pitcher Than President a Rooter

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—(AP)—President Truman today telegraphed Mort Cooper that Cooper is a better pitcher than the chief executive is a rooter.

The White House made public an exchange of telegrams between Cooper, Boston Braves pitcher and a fellow townsman of the president from Independence, Mo.

Cooper's telegram, sent on Sunday before he defeated Brooklyn, said:

"You try and pull the Cards in today. I will try to beat the Dodgers. From a fellow townsman."

The president, who was unable to pull the Cards in, replied as follows:

"Congratulations Mort, you did a better job than I did."

Presidential press secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters it is unlikely that President Truman will attend any of the world series games, even if St. Louis should win the three game playoff with Brooklyn.

Former Wac is Convicted of Jewels Theft

Sentenced to Prison For Five Years At Hard Labor

FRANKFURT, Germany, Sept. 30—(AP)—Former WAC Captain Kathleen Nash Durant was convicted today by a military court of stealing $1,500,000 worth of Hesse family jewels, and was sentenced to five years imprisonment at hard labor, with dishonorable discharge.

Mrs. Durant's husband, Col. Jack Durant, and Maj. David Watson, are awaiting trial on complicity charges in the theft of the jewels from Kronberg castle.

Mrs. Durant displayed no emotion as the nine-officer court handed down its verdict of guilt on three counts of larceny, embezzlement and being absent without leave from her military post.

The 43-year-old defendant had been in charge of the Hesse family castle, used as an American army officers' club, last winter when the jewels disappeared. The Durants were married on their return to the United States from Germany.

Mrs. Durant's attorney pleaded that she was being made the "scapegoat" for all the looting done by American soldiers in occupied Germany.

Appeal by Attorney
"Thousands of others have done the same thing," said Lt. Col. John S. Dwinell, of Brooklyn, N. Y., in his closing appeal for mercy.

Protest to Shop Crafts Resolution

484 Contend Local Unions Were Not Consulted First

Declarations of protest signed by 484 Missouri Pacific shopmen have been prepared opposing the action last week by the Federated Shop Crafts which endorsed the action of the city administration in adopting an ordinance levying taxation on theatres by the gross receipts method.

The protest is not based on whether the tax is or is not justified. The main objection is that the representatives of the shop crafts by passing the resolution acted—without authority by not first calling a meeting of each and every craft to determine if the rank and file of the union crafts were in favor of or opposed to the Motion Picture tax.

Last week the Federated Shop Crafts' resolution, signed by thirteen representatives, was submitted to and published by the Sedalia Democrat and Capital after the representatives to the Federated Shop Crafts held a meeting in Central Business College at which time they passed the resolution in which they declared the Federated Shop Crafts represented approximately 1500 taxpayers and residents of the City of Sedalia; that they endorsed the action of the mayor and city council in adopting the tax ordinance; that they were aware of the problems confronting a city of this size and had the best interests of the city in mind in levying such a tax, it being necessary for the welfare of the city to collect proportionate taxes from sources deriving the greatest monetary benefit from the city; that they were of the opinion the theatre interests should assume their just tax burden; and resolved that they request the theatre interests and the mayor and city council to work out a solution that would be equitable and just to all parties concerned, without raising theatre admissions and enable the citizens of Sedalia and surrounding territory to again be able to enjoy theatre entertainment.

Today the declarations of protest resolution, in reply to this action, were brought to the newspapers by W. J. Donath and T. J. McMillin. The protest read:

"We, the undersigned, protest the action of the Federated Shop Crafts of the Missouri Pacific shops at Sedalia on the resolutions made and published in the Sedalia Democrat on September 24, 1946, pertaining to the city tax on Sedalia theatres.

"We do hereby charge the Federated Shop Crafts of acting without authority by not calling a meeting of each and every craft to determine if the rank and file of any of the various shop crafts were in favor of or opposed to this Motion Picture Tax."

Following passage of the ordinance by the city council last month levying a 5 percent tax on gross receipts of picture shows, managements of the three Sedalia theatres closed their shows in protest. They remain closed.

Absentee Ballot in Moberly City Election

MOBERLY, Mo., Sept. 30—(AP)—For the first time in its history Moberly will have absentee ballots in a city election.

The occasion is special election Oct. 22 on whether a 13-man commission will be elected to frame a charter for the city. The charter advocates, headed by Elmer Guthrie of the "home rule" organization hope to abolish the city manager form of government inaugurated here Sept. 18, 1944.

The city council decided to permit absentee ballots so that "every citizen will get a chance to vote."

Overwhelming Evidence That Nazi Defendants Planned and Waged War On 12 Nations

Report Declares Ribbentrop Joyful At News of Attack On Pearl Harbor

By G. K. Hodenfield
NUERNBERG, Germany, Sept. 30—(AP)—The international military tribunal ruled today that Germany in 1940 was planning war against the United States "at a later date" and did everything possible the next year to persuade Japan to attack the United States and Great Britain.

The tribunal's analysis said Joachim Von Ribbentrop, then foreign minister of Germany, was "overjoyed" at the news of the attack on Pearl Harbor and that Hitler expressed approval of Japanese tactics of negotiating as long as possible, then striking without a declaration of war.

The international court said that although it was true that Hitler and his colleagues originally did not consider war with the United States would be beneficial to their interests, it was apparent during 1941 that the view was revised and that Japan was given every encouragement to adopt a policy which would almost certainly bring the United States into the war.

Japanese In
On April 4, 1941, Hitler told Japanese Foreign Minister Matsukata that Germany would "strike without delay" in event of a Japanese attack on Singapore which might lead to war between Japan and the United States, it said.

The tribunal said that on the next day, Ribbentrop urged Matsukata to bring Japan into the war on November 28, 1941. Ribbentrop urged Japan, through her ambassador in Berlin, to attack the United States and Great Britain and stated that, should Japan become engaged in war with the United States, Germany would join that war immediately.

A few days later, Japanese representatives told Germany and Italy that Japan was preparing to attack the United States and asked for support. Germany and Italy agreed to this, although in the tripartite pact, Italy and Germany had agreed to assist Japan only if she was attacked, the tribunal said.

Roughage To Keep Up Milk Production

Sound Dairy Program To Get The Most Milk

Maximum production of nutritious, high quality milk and milk products while keeping within practical farm and dairy management practices is the objective of dairying as a farm enterprise, says A. C. Ragsdale of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. The place to start such a program is with the land itself, and the way to start is by organizing farming operations in relation to number of dairy cattle, labor, and equipment.

Fertilizing the soil increases the feed supply and can be supplemented with other practices to increase both yield and quality of crops. Its importance lies just as much in increasing quality of feed as it does in increasing yield, states Mr. Ragsdale. The nutrients must be in the ground before they can get into the crops, and they must be in the crops before the cow can utilize them.

Plenty of roughage is necessary for maximum production and in nearly all cases can be supplied on the farm. Care in planning calls for the selection of good crops for hay and pasture. Valuable nutrients in a crop may be lost in careless handling and storage.

Feed Roughage Liberally

For best results, roughage needs to be fed liberally, continues Mr. Ragsdale, which means that the cow needs to have all she wants. Grain rations should be fed in proportion to the amount of milk she produces. Roughage can be fed into the summer when pastures start to fail. This holds up production and averts the usual summer slump. It is easier to keep up production then to raise it after a slump.

Feed given to heifers and dry cows will pay dividends in milk after calving, too. Included in the proper use of feeds is the use of plenty of good water and salt. Another important step in a sound dairy program is providing or maintaining a herd of cows that will give the most milk in return for good feed, says Mr. Ragsdale. The sires with close ancestors that have proved superior are best. If possible, those with proved daughters should be selected. Artificial breeding can be used advantageously for the majority of the herds. In any case nothing less than a purebred bull is recommended to head any herd.

Good records and a sound testing program are essential in a good herd management program. Only through them can the dairyman know his better cows. A good form of production testing for the grade herd is the Dairy Herd Improvement Association program. A strict sanitation program and careful attention to the smallest symptoms of disease are necessary in keeping the herd healthy. Disease to be on the lookout for are tuberculosis, Bang's disease, mastitis, Vaginitis and trichomoniasis.

Had An Acre For Club Garden

4-H club garden project members of the Crystal Springs Willing Workers 4-H club and their project leader, Mrs. Charles Brown have engaged in a worthwhile activity in connection with their garden club this year. The members and their leader were fortunate in having the use of an acre of land in the community to use as a club garden. The use of the land was given by a neighbor interested in the 4-H club members and the pupils of the Crystal Springs school.

The object which the members and their leaders had in mind was to supply the vegetables necessary for the hot school lunches at the Crystal Springs school. Vegetables planted were bush beans, lima beans, tomatoes, cucumbers, sweet potatoes, and corn. With the dry weather in mid-summer it appeared as though their efforts had been in vain. Frequent hoeing and weeding was, however, continued by the members under the supervision of their leader. After the August rains the garden still produced a lot of vegetables.

To date 85 quarts of fresh vegetables have been harvested and canned from the club garden. If favorable weather continues, green beans, dry beans and corn are still to be canned and added to the list of vegetables for use in the hot school lunches.

4-H club leaders and mothers of the school pupils and others furnish the jars, the pressure cookers, and also can the vegetables in the school kitchen. At one of the recent meetings the following women assisted: Mrs. George Periguy, Mrs. Ethel Blaul, Mrs. Winifred Anderson, Mrs. T. Pohl, Mrs. Frank Buffon, Mrs. Arthur Turner, and Mrs. Charles H. To Speak Farm And Home Week

Highlighting the program of Farm and Home Week on Wednesday, October 30, is Leonard J. Fletcher, who is director of training and community relations of the Caterpillar Tractor Company, Peoria, Ill. His talk will center around industry and its relation to agriculture.

Mr. Fletcher is a graduate of Iowa State College, taught agricultural engineering at Washington State College, and later headed the division of agricultural engineering at the University of California.

In 1927, he took charge of agricultural sales for the Caterpillar Tractor Company. His activity included an extensive study of agricultural production methods and the use of mechanical power in farming in the United States, Canada and a number of European countries. He assumed his present position as director of training in 1941.

With the onset of war, Mr. Fletcher's efforts were directed to the pressing problem of mobilizing and training manpower. In 1944 he was awarded the Cyrus Hall McCormick Medal "For Exceptional and Meritorious Engineering Achievement in Agriculture."

Properly Feed Young Litter

Young suckling pigs respond favorably to any good treatment which is afforded them. The skilled hog raiser can expect a maximum return from his effort to properly feed and manage the young litter. Young pigs which receive improper care before weaning start with a handicap which is seldom overcome. Data by the Missouri Agricultural Experiment Station show that with the same treatment after weaning, pigs of light weight at weaning time take ten days to two weeks longer to reach a marketable weight than do pigs which have a relatively heavy weight when weaned.

An important factor determining the weaning weight of pigs is the amount of milk which a sow will produce for her litter. Further reports show that a group of sows fed an average of 4.62 lbs. of feed daily for the period of eight weeks following farrowing, produced pigs which averaged only 15 lbs. at weaning time as compared with an average weight of more than 25 lbs. at eight weeks of age in the

Will Show Their Baby Beef Calves

A number of Pettis county 4-H club livestock project members will show their baby beef calves in the 4-H club division of the American Royal Livestock show to be held at the American Royal Building in Kansas City on October 18-25th.

Preceding the American Royal there will be a pre-royal auction sale for 4-H club calves which are not to be held over for the royal. This year a committee, selected by the management of the American Royal will inspect all calves in the 4-H club department. The animals will be inspected at 8 a. m., Friday, October 18. Those not to be held for the Royal will be sold at the auction on Friday October 18th. Other calves will be shown at the regular show on Saturday, October 19th and then sold in the American Royal auction on Friday October 24th.

Club members who have calves to take to either the American Royal or to sell at the Pre-Royal sale are: Betty Lou Chamberlin, Wm. Thomas Chamberlin, Jason H. Chamberlin, of the Prairie Ridge 4-H club; Charles Snow, Jr., of the Walnut Grove club; Eldon Leiter of the South Abel club; G. B. Thompson of the Quisenberry club; Lynn Wagenknecht, of the Anator club; C. H. Williams of the Tanglewood club; Charles Williams of the Maplewood club.

Proper Method To Handle Pears

The proper harvesting, storage and utilization of pears will determine the food value of this crop to the family this fall and winter.

Many of the common pear varieties in Missouri develop stone cells in the flesh if allowed to thoroughly mature upon the tree. Such varieties will give a higher quality product if harvested before they are fully colored and matured and before these stone cells develop. Pears for home use and canning should be harvested as soon as the seed and the color of the fruit indicates maturity.

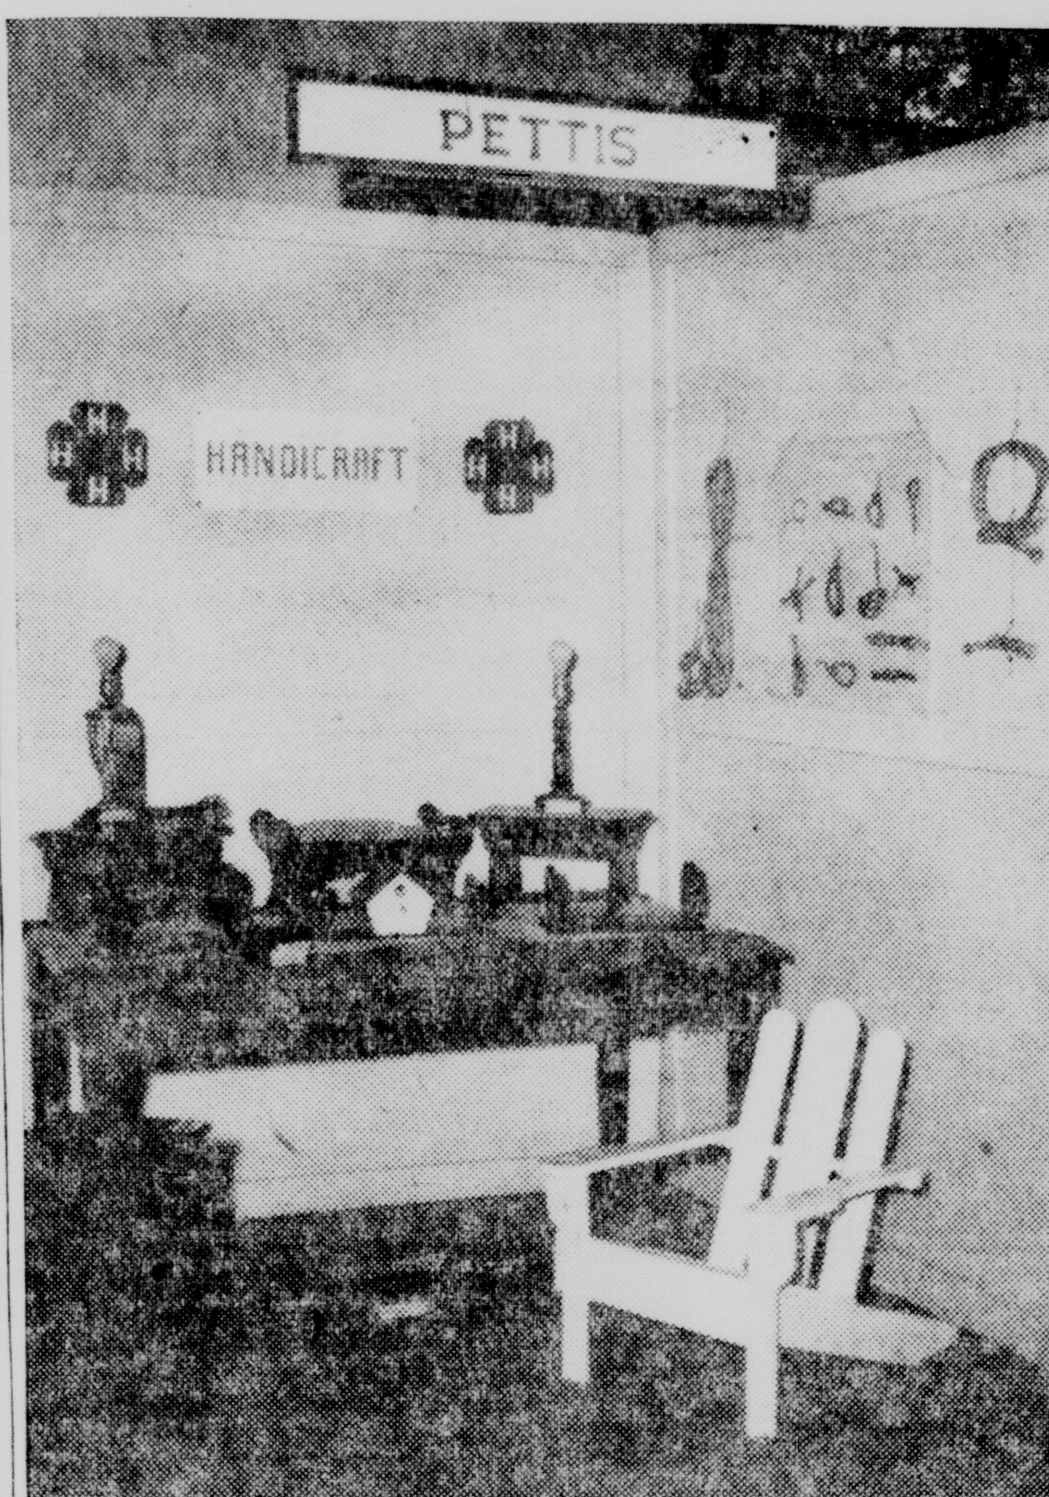

The fruit should be carefully handled and placed in containers then stored in an open shed or along the north side of a building and covered lightly with some protective material. Such storage place gives the coolest conditions possible on the average farm. Pears handled in this manner will ripen thoroughly within ten days or two weeks. The fruit is then in the best condition for eating and for canning. Some of the fruit may be left in this storage space until freezing weather threatens at which time it can be placed in a cave or cellar and used fresh.

As a general rule pears will not keep in common storage in Missouri longer than 60 days. Certain varieties have a somewhat longer storage period but the common varieties generally fall within this classification. Pears that are ripened by a short storage period will give a better flavored canned product than those which are canned as soon as the fruit is picked.

case of a group of sows fed an average of a little more than 1 lb. per day during the suckling period.

In addition to pigs from sows fed a liberal ration during the lactation period having a higher weaning weight, they are also usually much better able to cope with disease such as worm infestation and generally a larger number of pigs per sow are weaned.

Talk on Fear And Children

"Parent Education" was the topic spoken on by Mrs. J. E. Kent Friday at the Parent-Teacher Association held at Lookout school. In enlarging upon the subject, the speaker maintained, "The parents should conquer the fear in little children."

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. J. F. Shaw. Mrs. J. E. Kent had charge of the devotional services. The membership drive was started. Mrs. Roy DeWitt gave a report on the council meeting which was held in Sedalia.

Officers for this year are: President, Mrs. J. F. Shaw; vice president, Mrs. Roy Jeffries; parliamentarian, Mrs. Bessie Hood; pianist, Mrs. J. E. Kent; historian and reporter, Mrs. Roy DeWitt.

Heads of the various committees are: Hospitality, Mrs. J. E. Kent; social, Mrs. Charlie Reddin; membership, Ruth Ann Reddin. Refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be held October 18.

Time To Protect The Fruit Trees

Every winter many young fruit trees and other fruit plants are seriously damaged and frequently killed by rabbits and mice. Such plants should be given protection, especially now when fruits are badly needed. All grass and rubbish should be removed from around the plants so that mice will not harbor there and injure the trunk and roots.

Fruit trees should be protected to a height of 18 inches with a good rabbit guard, such as close-meshed wire netting or wood veneer, or wrapped with paper, corn stalks or some other readily available material. Such protection should be applied in October. If rabbits are particularly damaging to berry bushes such as raspberries, blackberries, etc., the berry patch can be fenced with poultry netting.

Otterville PTA Meeting

The first meeting of the Otterville Parent-Teachers Association for the school year was held in the high school auditorium Friday evening.

The business meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. Lester Young.

After the meeting a reception was given for the teaching staff, at which time a musical program was presented by Miss Lela Donley, Miss Madelyn Blakesley, Miss Betty Jo Watts and Mrs. Mary Watts.

Refreshments were served by the hospitality committee, composed of Mrs. H. W. Green, Mrs. Asa Bishop and Mrs. Wherley Cline.

Training Meet For Clubs' Leaders

A training meeting for the leaders of Home Economics Extension Clubs on "Business Facts for Farm Women" will be conducted by Miss Julia M. Rocheford, Extension Economist of the College of Agriculture, Columbia, on Wednesday, Oct. 2nd—2:00 p. m. at the Public Library.

The meeting will be in the form of a round table discussion. The subjects—savings, Wills and inheritances will be discussed. Questions on other subjects will also be answered by Miss Rocheford.

Rural Free Delivery Fifty Years Old Tuesday

By Brack Curry
WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—(P)—R. F. D. will be 50 years old Tuesday.

It was on October 1, 1896, that the first experimental rural free delivery mail service was established, in three West Virginia communities.

Now 29,641,772 persons are served by 32,126 rural mail carriers. The carriers travel 455,209,975 miles a year.

Today no one questions the value of R. F. D. But in the 90s violent opposition arose to the proposal to deliver mail free of charge to rural communities. Opponents in and out of congress talked of bad roads, of cost of money being spent for the benefit of just one class. Only after a long fight did congress consent to appropriate a small sum for the first experiment.

Success Beyond Dreams
Postmaster General Hannegan says "the success of the experiment went far beyond the dreams of the early advocates of rural free delivery, for the new service did more than offer convenience."

In a foreword to Mrs. G. W. Sabers' book, "The R. F. D.," official golden jubilee book of the National Rural Letter Carriers Association, Hannegan adds: "Amazingly, rural free delivery bound farmer to city dweller and shattered the isolation which had been threatening healthy American rural life. It opened and set in motion a flourishing new commerce. It proved an extraordinary force in unifying the nation."

Idea Not New
Actually the idea of rural delivery was not new. England had introduced it earlier. But Hannegan notes that "no precedent existed for the gigantic task undertaken in America, for here the problem was to span a continent from ocean to ocean, to conquer mountains and deserts, frozen wastes and tropical swamps."

The groundwork was laid in 1891, when Postmaster General Wanamaker in his annual report made the first official suggestion.

Rep. O'Donnell, of Michigan, on January 5, 1892, introduced the first bill in congress to set up the service. It carried an appropriation of $6,000,000, but failed to pass.

Finally congress on March 3, 1893, passed a bill proposed by Representative Watson, of Georgia. It set aside $10,000 for experimental rural delivery. The postmaster general considered this sum inadequate to introduce the service. So on July 6, 1894, another $20,000 was made available, and the further sum of $10,000 on June 9, 1896.

West Virginia First
The first experimental service was set up in West Virginia. Three routes operated out of Charleston, one out of Hallowtown and another out of Uvilla. They averaged about 20 miles. Each of the five carriers was paid $200 a year.

By 1897 there were 82 rural routes, covering 1,843 miles at an annual cost of $14,840. On September 1, 1946, there were 32,127 routes with a total mileage of 1,441,538. Rural delivery cost $107,046,080 for the 12 months ending June 30, 1945.

The first complete county rural service was established December 20, 1899, in Carroll county, Md. The postoffice department says, "Latest available figures show that 1,583 of the nation's 3,070 counties have R. F. D. service."

Rural routes vary in length from six to 100 miles. The longest is 99.80 miles out of Edinburg,

Texas. The average length is 44 miles. Many present day rural carriers zip along in automobiles, but early day carriers had rough times. Many had to have charcoal heat-caps. Later congress approved a bluish gray which would not show dirt so easily. Finally the carriers abandoned the uniform idea and wore whatever was best suited to the climate in their areas. "The R. F. D." also recalls some of the carriers' early tribulations. One was money. The other was roads. In 1902 the rural carrier's salary was $50 a month. In 1915 the pay of a carrier serving a route 24 miles or over, six days a week, was only $1,200 a year. Those early carriers were so short on funds, Mrs. Aaberg reports, that in 1903 only 14 of the 15,000 carriers promised to attend the first R. F. D. carriers' convention. But it was held, and about 90 showed up.

According to "The R. F. D.," the delegates at their third resolution recommended:

Changed Magazine Number
"That the R. F. D. News (a weekly magazine) be requested to change its heading, which now shows a mail wagon drawn by one horse, to a wagon drawn by two horses, as one horse is not sufficient to draw a covered mail wagon."

The editor carried out the suggestion. In the early 1900s roads often became impassable in muddy weather. Some carriers, says "The R. F. D.," experimented by using bicycles. In 1906, the postmaster general authorized the use of cars, and by 1908 the motorcycle was being advertised for use by carriers.

Something else new—called the "hammock cart," a two-wheeled vehicle supposed to ride easier than a buggy—was being offered as "just the thing for rural carriers."

Today the rural carrier is a post-office on wheels. He furnishes his patrons the same services offered by a postoffice. He also obtains livestock statistical reports for the agriculture department.

Take a Closer Look at SEED

Here is the germ of a red clover seed sending out a soil-anchoring rootlet which in a short time will have the power to fix nitrogen from the air.

Simultaneously, it will improve soil fertility, grow a high-protein crop for livestock and pass on to humans the healthful carotene and vitamins of milk, butter, eggs and meat.

The world needs more of such crops. The price per bushel is excellent for almost every kind of legume and grass seed, soybeans and vegetable seeds. It will pay you well to set aside several acres this fall and arrange for a nearby All-Crop Harvester to save every possible bushel.

The All-Crop Harvester is recognized for its ability to cut close and glean low-hanging pods. Its wide, rubber-cushioned bar cylinder protects the delicate germ and minimizes crackage.

The All-Crop Harvester makes it possible to harvest over 100 seeds which can end human suffering from malnutrition and bring new prosperity to farms everywhere.

Nuernberg Trials Unique in Man's History

The moment the Nazis seized power they set about, in defiance of the Versailles Treaty, to arm.

The large and varied role of Hermann Goering has half military and half gangster.

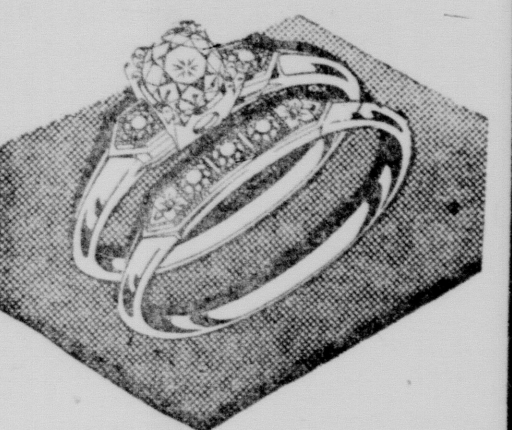

Although some have criticized the Nuremberg war crimes trials as long-drawn-out and dull, the fact remains that they were unique in the history of man. For the first time, war of aggression was legally described as a crime — a crime against humanity. For the first time, the politicians and militarists who conspired for and wage such a war, became liable to punishment for their crime. The 20 German officials at Nuremberg were given the kind of trial which, in the words of Prosecutor Robert H. Jackson, "They, in the days of their pomp and power, never gave to any man." Below, briefly summarized from statements of the prosecution, is illustrated the case that was developed against these men.

The Nazi movement will be of evil memory in history because of its persecution of the Jews, the most far-flung and terrible racial persecution of all time.

If you were to say of these men that they are not guilty, it would be as true to say there has been no war, there are no slain, there has been no crime.

How can we demand the death penalty for those who executed millions of men on order, if we hesitate to demand the supreme punishment for those who order?

Red Cross Corner

Mrs. Frank Piper, who has been a member of the Red Cross Staff Assistant Corps for the past several years, who is also serving as chairman of recording hours of Red Cross for Sedalia Chapter No. 57, Order of Eastern Star, has reported that during the past nine months, her organization has put in the largest number of hours of any Eastern Star chapter in any district. It is possible that this also establishes the state record. The Pettis county chapter is naturally proud of its representation in city and county organizations. It is this sort of cooperation which makes the American Red Cross, workable and dependable, in war or peace.

Attention Please: The Red Cross office has been notified of the following regulation in regard to overseas Christmas mail: Christmas parcels for members of the armed forces overseas must be mailed during the period October 15 to November 15, 1946. The executive committee of the state democratic committee in a meeting at the Midland hotel in Kansas City arranged the schedule for addresses by William Jennings Bryan in Missouri, among them being one at Sedalia on October 10.

John T. Heard expects to be located in his elegant new home on West Broadway some time in November. A considerable delay has been experienced in the work on it by failure of materials to arrive.

Walter Grow, a former tobaccoist, is now a regular Pullman conductor on the Missouri Pacific between Kansas City and Hot Springs, Ark.

Thomas Gordon, for the past year general foreman at the old shops of the Missouri Pacific and for eight years an employee of the company here, resigned to accept a position as general foreman with the L. & N. at the shops of that road at Montgomery, Ala.

Broadway Waits for 'Iceman'

O'Neill's First Play in 13 Years Will Be the First Big Excitement In Season of Old Names and Faces

By James Thrasher
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA)—The first really postwar theatrical season doesn't promise any revolutionary changes in the brave new world of the drama that revolves around Broadway. There will be many old familiar names and faces around, and a number of old familiar plays that have been revived.

For something else that isn't new, it will still be hard to get two for tonight for a hit show. The thousands of soldiers and sailors who roamed Times Square at this time last year may be gone. The market may have slumped. Transportation difficulties, lack of hotel rooms, a series of strikes and other factors may have scared a lot of visitors away from New York. But still—

"Business couldn't be better," says C. P. Greneker, and Greneker should know, for he has been press agenting for the Messrs. Shubert these many years. Joe Heidt, the Theater Guild press man, concurs. He cites the several shows which opened late last spring and got the kiss of death from the critics, but which managed to survive the summer—which used to make even good shows wilt and expire.

The new season, by tradition, got under way on Labor Day but the first big excitement is still to come. That will be on October 9, when Eugene O'Neill returns to Broadway (where he was born) with his first new play in 13 years, called "The Iceman Cometh."

This, like some of O'Neill's earlier works, is a long one. It will start at 5:30 and end at 11, with an hour and a quarter out for dinner.

New Talent Sees
The years of waiting for a new play by O'Neill naturally heighten the anticipation of its opening night. But O'Neill is not the only distinguished playwright who will contribute to the season's entertainment. In fact, the roster of famous names bulks large on the title pages of plays cast and forecast for 1946-47. And it serves to underline the scarcity of talented young playwrights that Elmer Rice complains of.

Rice, with O'Neill, is the dean of active American dramatists. Each had his first play produced in 1914. Rice currently has a hit, "Dream Girl," on Broadway, has a new play written but not cast, and has finished work on the libretto of an operatic version of the Pulitzer Prize-winning "Street Scene" of 1929. The opera, with music by Kurt Weill, is scheduled for a Christmas week opening.

The list of upcoming plays seems notable for a dearth of dramas dealing with the grim realities of the present. But Rice rules out today's unsettled times as causing the lack of young talent. That lack, he points out, has persisted for a long time, back beyond the war to the days of peace.

Nothing seems to inhibit the veteran theatrical craftsmen, in any event. Rice's colleague in the Playwrights' company, Maxwell Anderson, has a new play called "Joan of Lorraine" which is awaited almost as eagerly as the O'Neill work. Not only is Anderson a playwright who commands attention, but the star of his new work is Ingrid Bergman, who will be making her first Broadway appearance.

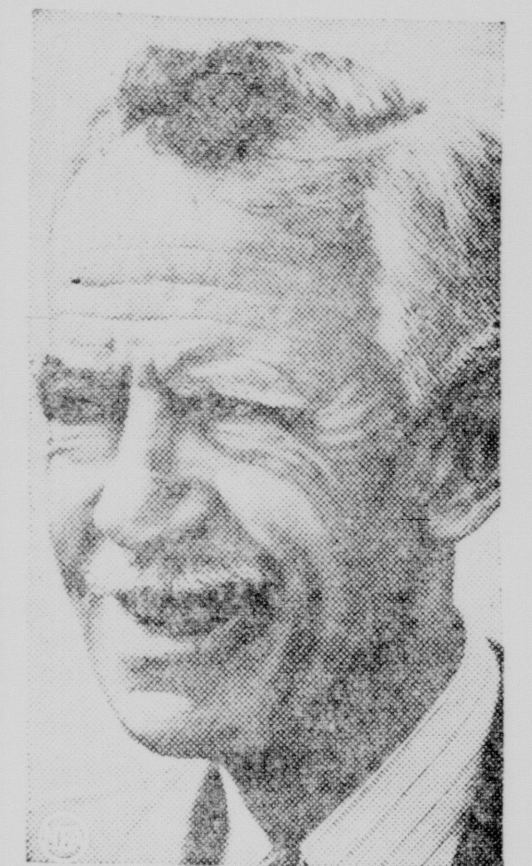

Noel Coward's new comedy, "Present Laughter," is due in October, with "Happy Birthday" by Anita Loos, will serve for the week of return of Helen Hayes, and Ina Claire will reappear after several seasons' absence in a play called "Fatal Weakness," by George Kelly. These are also October attractions.

November is scheduled to bring more new plays by noted craftsmen. Besides the Anderson play titled "The World of Christopher Blake," and a play by Lil Hellman, as yet untitled, which is to reintroduce the unpleasant family which Miss Hellman unveiled in "The Little Foxes."

A bumper crop of musicals is in the offing. Definitely set, beyond 11th-hour changes, are "Park Avenue" in October, and "Sweet Eye and Bye," "Finian's Rainbow" and "Topkapi of Notre Dame" the following month.

"Park Avenue" has a book by George S. Kaufman and Nunnally Johnson, lyrics by Ira Gershwin, and a score by Arthur Schwartz. There are almost enough scheduled revivals to turn Shubert Alley into the sawdust trail. Heading for an October 14 opening is "Lady Windermere's Fan," the Oscar Wilde measure piece which was brought out and dusted off in London last year. Cornelia Otis Skinner and Henry Daniell are the stars, but reviews from the tryout tour indicate that they are sharing attention with Cecil Beaton's settings and costumes. In addition, the noted British photographer makes his acting debut in this production.

The Hollywood Shuttle
Other forthcoming revivals include Sygne's "Playboy of the Western World," starring Burgess Meredith; "Cyrano de Bergerac," with Jose Ferrer as producer and star; Elisabeth Bergner in "The Duchess of Malfi"; "Lysistrata," with an all-Negro cast; Victor Herbert's "Sweetheart," with Bobby Clark; Gay's "The Beggar's Opera," with a new score by Duke Ellington; and a season by the American Repertory theater in which Eva Le Gallienne and Margaret Webster will both act and direct.

Eugene O'Neill: "The Iceman Cometh" brings him back.

Ingrid Bergman: Anderson's new play brings her to Broadway

Maxwell Anderson: His new play — and Bergman — eagerly awaited

The Broadway-Hollywood shuttle seems to be functioning normally, with these film players, in addition to Miss Bergman, slated for appearances sooner or later: Charles Laughton (in his own revision of Brecht's "Galileo"), Claire Trevor, Philip Don, Basil Rathbone, Zazu Pitts, Mischa Auer and Jean Parker. Robert Montgomery of the movies will be represented as co-producer, with Elliott Nugent, of "The Big Two," in which Miss Trevor and Don will be seen.

All the above, of course, may not see the light of night on Broadway. And there are, in addition, at least 75 plays in various hopeful stages of development. As always, they are trying out, rehearsing, being revised, seeking financial backing, or waiting to be written. Many will die a-borning, others will die on the road, some will get to New York, and a few will stick.

It is not possible, to be sure, to predict the sort of season it will be. If it were, no producer or backer would ever lose his shirt, and the drama critics would be out of jobs. But one thing at least seems certain—getting a ticket will still be a trick that takes some doing.

Although the Girl Scout organization is the largest girls' group in the world, it could be much greater and reach many more girls if there were enough women who could give their time and interest to the movement. Adults are vital to Girl Scouting because they provide the leadership and sponsorship without which the program cannot be carried on.

How Can You Help?
Practically every Girl Scout troop has a waiting list of girls who want to be Scouts. More leaders and co-leaders and troop committees are needed to open additional troops for all the would-be Scouts. If these are not forthcoming, there is no alternative to the "wishing and waiting" list. Girl Scout troops cannot be expanded beyond the point where the program and procedures can be effective.

It is up to the grown-ups—to the women, in fact—as to how many girls can have the benefits of Scout training. Without their

Mr. and Mrs. Rival F. Rhoads of route 4, Sedalia, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Marian Elaine, to Mr. Lawrence Robert Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Jackson of Smithton.

Osage Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution held its first meeting of the year at the Country club on Saturday with thirty-four members and four guests present.

Mrs. J. E. Mitchell, the new regent, presided.

Following the monthly reports Mrs. Frank S. Leach presented the chapter and Miss Nina Harris certificates of citation in behalf of the U. S. O. for distinguished service.

At the close of the business meeting Mrs. E. F. Yancey, music chairman, introduced Mrs. C. D. Demand who sang five South American songs, telling the history of each song. They were "A Lullaby" from San Salvador, "Adios Quichau" from Argentine, "Joy" from Panama, "Lovely Lullaby" from Paraguay, and "Little Love" from Paraguay.

Mrs. H. E. Lindstrom, program chairman, presented the guest speaker, Mrs. A. F. Scott, who by way of reviewing "Grandmother Drives South," by Jordon Henley, took the chapter on a tour of South America, following a sixty year old woman 30,000 miles in a station wagon. This tour included visits to "the little Germany" of Argentine, strike farm inspection, a drive through an ocean road, watching sheep sheared at the world's largest sheep ranches and a rugged trip to the South Pole.

At the close of the meeting the members were directed to the dining rooms where refreshments were served. The table was covered with a lace cloth, with a centerpiece of garden flowers. Mrs. D. T. Abell poured coffee from a silver urn and Mrs. Nina Harris served cake.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. A. L. Walter, Mrs. B. E. Broadus, Mrs. A. J. Campbell, Mrs. C. E. Yeater and Mrs. H. E. Lindstrom.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil A. Russell, of Kansas City, who formerly resided in Sedalia, announce the engagement of their daughter, Phyllis, to Mr. Roland Austin Greathouse, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Austin Greathouse, of Garden City, Kas. Miss Russell and Mrs. Greathouse attended Kansas State college, where she is a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority, and he is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. Mr. Greathouse served three years overseas in the marine corps. The wedding will take place in December.

Find Bodies of Russia's Renewed Demand on Turkey Raises Danger Signal

Two Students Side by Side

Climax of Lover's Quarrel Police Report

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 30.—(P)—Two students at Ohio State university who had been keeping company for a year were found shot to death today in what police described as the climax of a lover's quarrel.

The couple, both juniors in the college of engineering, were: Alice Krone Patterson, 20, daughter of Allan Dewitt Patterson, of Lock Haven, Pa., formerly chairman of the appointment division in the university bureau of educational research, and Donald Thorne, 20, son of Mrs. Alma G. Thorne, of Eau Claire, Wis.

Police said the evidence indicated Thorne shot Miss Patterson and then killed himself with a .22 caliber pistol.

The bodies were found in the front yard of a residence next door to the home of Dr. Robert Higgy, director of the University radio station, WOSU, where Miss Patterson lived.

Pistol Beside Bodies

The pistol lay beside the bodies. Friends of the couple said Miss Patterson recently had tried to break off the courtship, but Thorne had persisted in his attentions.

They left the Higgy residence late yesterday to visit the Westminster Foundation, headquarters of a religious youth movement. Miss Patterson returned home about 8 p. m., but left again. When she failed to return later in the evening, the family became concerned and spent most of the night trying to find her.

Miss Margery Metcalf, who lives in the neighborhood, said she heard what she thought were shots about 10:30 p. m.

The bodies were found at dawn.

To Jail For Taking Lard

Barton admitted stealing a five-gallon can of lard from the truck of Dick Williams, Ionia, last Friday night, while the truck was being loaded at the Burnett Packing company. "Lard was identified through pictures police had taken of him when previously picked up by them."

His arrest was made Saturday by the officers, after which he admitted taking the lard.

Zoo Bears to Be Butchered

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 30.—(P)—Papa, Mama and Baby Bear at the Sanderleiter zoo here are being sacrificed for the meat shortage.

Kenneth Sanderleiter said today the bears were being butchered because of the meat shortage and difficulty in feeding them. They will provide 1,200 pounds of meat.

"I hope they help the meat shortage a little, but I won't eat them," the zoo owner said.

"I feel almost like I was butchering my own relatives."

The bears' daily menu, he said, included such things as 10 loaves of bread, a dozen eggs, milk, 10 to 20 pounds of sweet potatoes or carrots, or a half bushel of lettuce.

"Those are things people should have," Sanderleiter said.

Ex-Convict Is Held on Check Charge

Released From State Prison Last July 13

Frank Powers, alias Frank Howard, an ex-convict, was arrested Sunday night on a charge of forgery at a farm home on R. F. D. 3, where he had been employed for several weeks. Powers was released from the Missouri penitentiary on July 13, after serving 33 months on a manslaughter charge.

On information from Springfield, Mo., his home town, Powers was picked up for investigation in connection with forgery charges there. However, local police who went with State Troopers Pete Storch and Wayne Allman to make the arrest, learned of several checks which he had written in Sedalia Sunday on the Union Savings bank.

Powers was detained in the county jail until this morning for investigation and police took the checks to the bank to ascertain if they were any good. "No account" was written on one and a charge of forgery issued against him on this check. Police have three such checks in their possession and are endeavoring to learn if there are any more "floating" around Sedalia.

Blames Liquor

Sunday night Powers told the officers he was released from the penitentiary July 13 on a manslaughter charge. He said he was sentenced to prison after cutting a man in Springfield, who later died. In the fight, he said, he was also stabbed 13 times. "It all grows out of drinking," he said, "and every time I get drunk I get into trouble. I was in Jeff City (meaning the prison) only once, but have been arrested many times for being drunk."

When informed he was in Sedalia and the pickup issued, officers were notified to take every precaution in making the arrest. State Troopers reported that some time ago he fought it out with two police officers and a state patrolman, cutting the patrolman with a knife, then made his escape. This, Powers denied when asked about it, his remarks being, "I have been in a lot of fights, but I don't remember cutting a Trooper. I do things when I'm drunk that I can't even remember."

Powers is 62 years old, has been married twice, has two grown children. He says he is a one-time boxer.

Woolery said two persons whose names were not disclosed, were held for questioning in connection with an apparent plan to blow up the Howdy club.

The bomb, found by club owner Harold Briggs, was made of bottles of gasoline, metal tubing, wiring, a spark plug, a large rat trap and alarm clock.

High School Pupils Strike

GLASSBORO, N. J., Sept. 30.—The 650 pupils at Glassboro high school marched out of the school today protesting a state law barring three 19-year-old fellow pupils, all war veterans, from playing on the school football team.

Flanked by girl cheer leaders, the entire student body staged a half-hour parade, waving placards, some of which read:

"All work and no play,"

"We served our country, why can't we play now?"

"We want a square deal for our ex-GIs."

The pupils arrived at the usual time, but assembled in the gymnasium, picked up placards, declared they were on strike and marched out.

Held For Investigation

Lawrence Landes, Jameson, Mo., is being held by the police for investigation. He was picked up while driving a Chrysler automobile, later learned to be his, and in possession of an old-type gun.

Russia's renewed demand on Turkey for joint control of the Dardanelles — to the exclusion of Britain, America and other interested powers — raises another dangerous issue to threaten international relations.

There are few more delicate situations in our strife-torn world than this. It is part and parcel of England's struggle to maintain a foothold in Greece in the face of the Soviet's expanding sphere of influence. And in large degree, John Bull's control of the eastern Mediterranean and the Middle East depends upon maintenance of his own sphere of influence in this strategic area.

Must Keep Equilibrium

What interest has Uncle Sam in that far-off spot? Well, to sum it up in general and non-explosive terms, it's widely held to be essential for the security of the United States and the rest of the western hemisphere that an equilibrium be maintained in the Mediterranean. The point is that an overbalancing of power there might precipitate another war which would drag Sam in again.

The Turks, who recently rejected this demand which Moscow now has reiterated, have their claws squared for the military establishment is described as the "extreme alert." Naturally they don't want war with mighty Russia. That would be insane. But they are tough when they get crowded on their own home grounds.

Backing Turkey

Meantime diplomatic authorities in Washington have said that the USA and Britain can be expected to back Turkey firmly. This doesn't mean that the Anglo-American pair or Turkey are opposed to Russia having full rights in the Dardanelles. On the contrary they have recognized that the Soviet Union should have free passage through this strategic strait. What they do object to is any Russian military expansion into the Dardanelles and any direct negotiations between Moscow and Ankara to the exclusion of other interested powers.

In short, while Russia, Turkey and the other Black Sea states obviously have a special interest in the Dardanelles, yet this great waterway is a trust of the world at large. This global interest has existed since the ages.

The Dardanelles has seen continual warfare for its control since 1200 B. C. when Agamemnon led his Greeks against Troy near the southern shore. Because it is narrow, the strait can be controlled by defenses along its shores — and that's why the other powers don't want to see the Soviet Union installed in fortifications there.

Two Victims Of Swindle

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 30.—(P)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation said today the victims of a $125,000 swindle by Antonio Navarro (the Frog Man) Fernandez were M. O. Dunning, a Washington attorney, and Sigmund Janas of (Colonial Airlines) New York City.

Joseph E. Thornton, FBI agent in charge here, said at least a part of the money allegedly obtained by Fernandez, also known as "Kid Tiger," was obtained by the victims as a loan from the South Carolina National Bank at Columbia, S. C.

Thornton added that the bank merely made a loan to a man of good reputation on adequate security, and was not itself directly interested in subsequent developments.

Fernandez, described by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover as a notorious international swindler, was arrested as he stepped off a plane at Miami from Curacao, Dutch West Indies.

He was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Roger E. Davis on Saturday and bond was set at $100,000 pending further hearing Wednesday. Fernandez informed Davis that he would supply the bond, but had not done so today.

Army Calls for Larger Draft Quota in Oct.

Age Group Still 19 Through 29; Enlistments Hold Up

By Edward E. Bomar
WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(P)—The army called on selective service today for an October draft quota of 35,000 men, up 10,000 from September.

There was no change in the age group to be called — 19 through 29.

The draft quota was raised without explanation on the heels of war department orders to speed the release of some 300,000 non-volunteer enlisted men.

Officials said, however, the army would effect savings in money and gain in efficiency by discharging men who had only a few weeks or months to serve and replacing them with recruits who under the extended draft law must serve 18 months.

Enlistments Exceed

Volunteer enlistments, meanwhile, continued to exceed advance estimates. In the first two weeks of September 23,239 signed up for the regular army—nearly as many as had been expected for the full month.

Selective service headquarters said reports from local boards indicate the September draft quota of 25,000 was met, chiefly with men between 19 and 23. And officials predicted the increased October demand likewise will be fulfilled, provided army physical standards "are not applied too strictly."

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national draft director, has estimated the 19-through-29 manpower pool at 155,000 men, but has forecast difficulties in filling quotas after October.

The National League is All Tied Up

Cardinals-Dodgers Will Start Playoff Tuesday in St. Louis

By Jack Hand

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(P)—St. Louis and Brooklyn have backed into a situation unique in the annals of baseball—an exact first place tie for the National League pennant.

Each club had a chance to pick up all the marbles and a world series date with the Boston Red Sox of the American League by winning yesterday's final games. Each lost and will play for the title in the best two of three games.

Eddie Dyer's Cardinals probably can find the most reasons to kick themselves today, for they knew full well the Dodgers were having a rough afternoon with Boston's Mort Cooper before the Redbirds "blew" their finale 8 to 3 to Chicago's Johnny Schmitz.

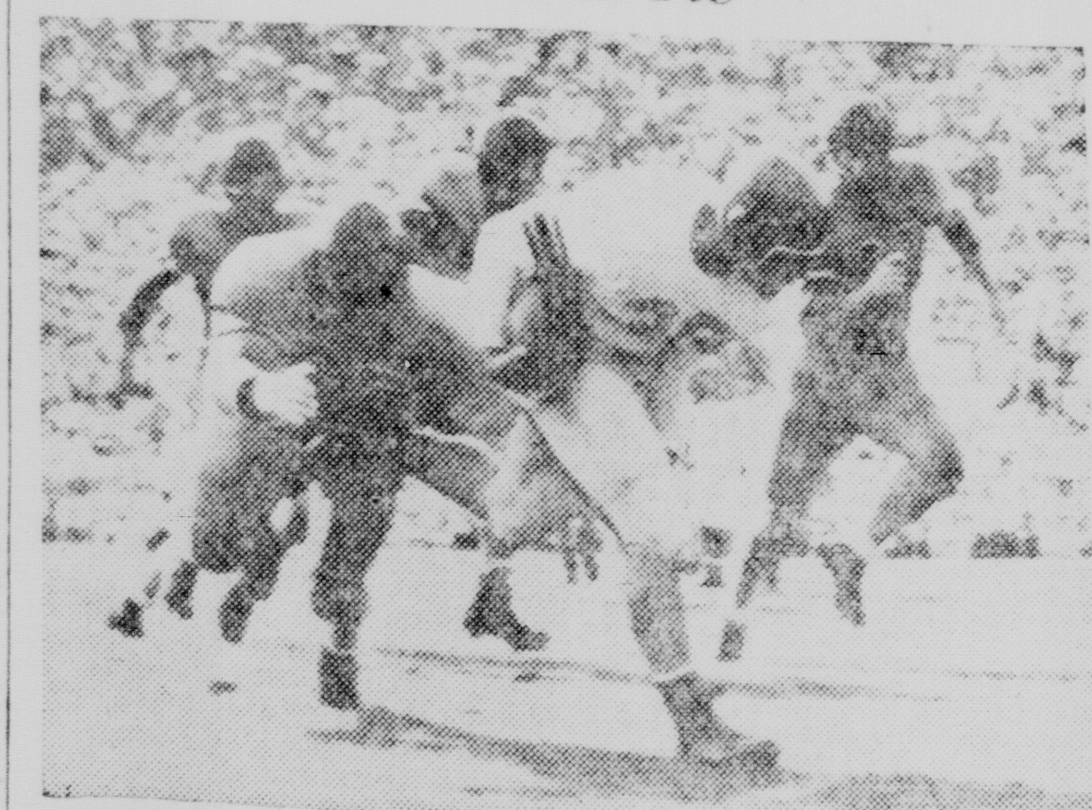

Each of the 34,124 paying customers that produced Sportsman's park's largest crowd of the season knew all about it. The Braves had opened a 1-0 gap on Brooklyn and the Cardinals were showing the way to the Cubs 2-1, with George (Red) Mueger coasting along in fine style.

Then came the fatal sixth in which the St. Louis pitching and fielding collapsed during a dizzy spell that yielded five Chicago runs on a double, three infield hits and a wild throw by Stan Musial. The toss by Musial, over the head of Morty Dickson, who was covering first base, broke the Cards. They were thrown, and made only a few disconnected moves at ending Chicago's lead.

When the inning was over it mattered little that the scoreboard carried tidings of Boston's 4-0 win over Brooklyn.

Naturally the fans were disappointed and so was Manager Eddy Dyer, who sat in the stifled

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

In a fitting climax to baseball's most turbulent year, the close of the regular season today found the National League without a champion, since the Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals wound up in a dead heat for first place.

It is doubtful if ever before so many hectic episodes were crowded into one big league season. Here are just a few of the things that happened in 1946:

The raiding of the majors by George Pasquel's Mexican baseball league; Robert Murphy's effort to establish a baseball union and the narrowly averted Pittsburgh Pirates player strike; resignation of six major league managers; evacuation of the National League cellar by the Philadelphia Phils, who some thought had a lifelong option there; sale of the Pittsburgh and Cleveland clubs; Bob Feller's determined bid for a strikeout record; the Boston Red Sox' first pennant in 28 years, and a record 18,000,000 attendance mark for the majors.

The Cards-Dodgers deadlock was something new in major league baseball. Never before had a regular campaign ended in such a tie, although the Chicago Cubs and New York Giants were ordered to replay a tie game to determine the championship in 1908. The Cubs won that regular season playoff and also the World Series.

The first Cards-Dodgers playoff game is to be played in St. Louis tomorrow. The two teams then will go to Brooklyn for a second game Thursday and possibly a third Friday.

This means the world series will start next Sunday, Oct. 6 instead of next Wednesday. Meanwhile the Red Sox will pass the time playing an all-star squad in several exhibition games.

Neither the Dodgers nor the Cards had the punch necessary to put over the knockout blow yesterday. A victory for either team meant the championship, but the Brooks bowed to Mort Cooper and the Boston Braves 4-0, while the Cards were beaten by Johnny Schmitz and the Chicago Cubs 8-3.

Cooper, displaying the same brilliance which made him one of the game's finest hurlers when he pitched for the Cards, held the Dodgers to four singles. His triumph failed to gain for Manager Billy Southworth and his Braves a tie for third place because the Cubs retained their one-game margin in beating the Cardinals.

Managers who quit during the year were Bill McKeechie of Cincinnati, Frank Frisch at Pitts-

Seen in Action at Liberty Park Sunday Bringing Memories Of Other Days

Once again members of some of the famous old teams that have represented Sedalia in the past met on the field at Liberty Park Sunday afternoon to bring back memories of other days.

The Ramblers won the contest 4 to 2 in a far better played game than was anticipated by local fans.

The game ended with the old timers' long on weight and short on breath, playing some fancy ball throughout the nine innings.

The old timers showed the fans some of their old time tricks of the trade in the fifth inning when the Ramblers filled the bases with one out. Green, the Ramblers pitcher, was on third base when Ellsworth pulled the "hidden ball trick" for out number two.

Then Taylor hit a short fly ball into center field. Just a can of corn" boomed Potts' Evans, manager of the Ramblers, using the ballplayers phrase to describe a loop of that kind. Hank Williams, centerfielder, dashed across the field like Tarzan swinging from the trees in a jungle or Superman going to a fire and hit the ball like a 10 ton truck smack into a General Grant tank as Williams hit the ground. He was considerably shaken up but it was "the fielding play of the day."

The Ramblers pitched their star left-hander, Green, who was "fast and furious" on the mound to lead the old timers tell it. Elmer Dillard, whose name struck terror to many a batter in the past, hurled the first five innings.

Someone said that he was using something called an "emery ball." Anyway the "kids" could not do anything with it.

"Potts' Evans was seen scratching the ball several times during the game. After driving out a base hit in the first of the sixth inning, Dillard retired in favor of Rothanger, who retired the side in the sixth. Taking over for the old timers in the seventh to finish the game was "Lefty" Harold Schwenk. He was a diamond star for the St. Louis Browns thirty-three years ago which shows that you can't keep a good "kid" down.

It should be pointed out that the average age of the Ramblers was considerably lower than that of their opponents and were in good condition from a strenuous baseball season. Rudy Buss played for the old timers in the outfield.

In all seriousness it was a great exhibition and a fine way to end the 1946 baseball season. The old timers plan to organize a "3 and 3" club which will stage the game annually and help promote interest in baseball in Sedalia. A committee composed of E. L. Ellsworth, P. R. Nichols and H. L. Williams was selected to make the preliminary plans for the club's organization.

Players who performed for the old timers were "Potts' Evans and Fred Wagner first base, "Slug" Nichols and Bill Walker, second base; Dutch Hawley shortstop, Gabby Ellsworth third base, Hank Williams centerfield, John Thomas rightfield, Al Buhlig catcher, Elmer Dillard, Wilbur Rothanger and Harold Schwenk pitchers and Ralph Falls, pinch hitter.

Score by innings:
Old Timers 001 000 001—2 4 6
Ramblers 001 010 02—4 6 2

Brown to Stake His Title Tuesday

Tuesday's wrestling matches will provide plenty of excitement in accordance with reports from the matchmakers and sponsors, the Pettis County Post No. 16 of the American Legion. The fact Orville Brown is being compelled to return to meet Ronnie Etchinson, St. Joseph, who claimed extremely "unfair tactics" were used to win by Brown last week, has not made Brown any too happy.

Brown, claimant to the heavyweight title in the middle west, remarked when informed he wouldn't get any opportunity to come back here unless he met Etchinson said, "I have other other wrestling dates to keep and can't spend all my time in Sedalia, but I do like to wrestle here and want to come back. Etchinson is a cinch to beat. He's got lots to learn about the game."

Etchinson, who has shown much improvement since his return from the coast, isn't going to be any pushover for the champ. Etchinson said, "I only want one more chance to get him."

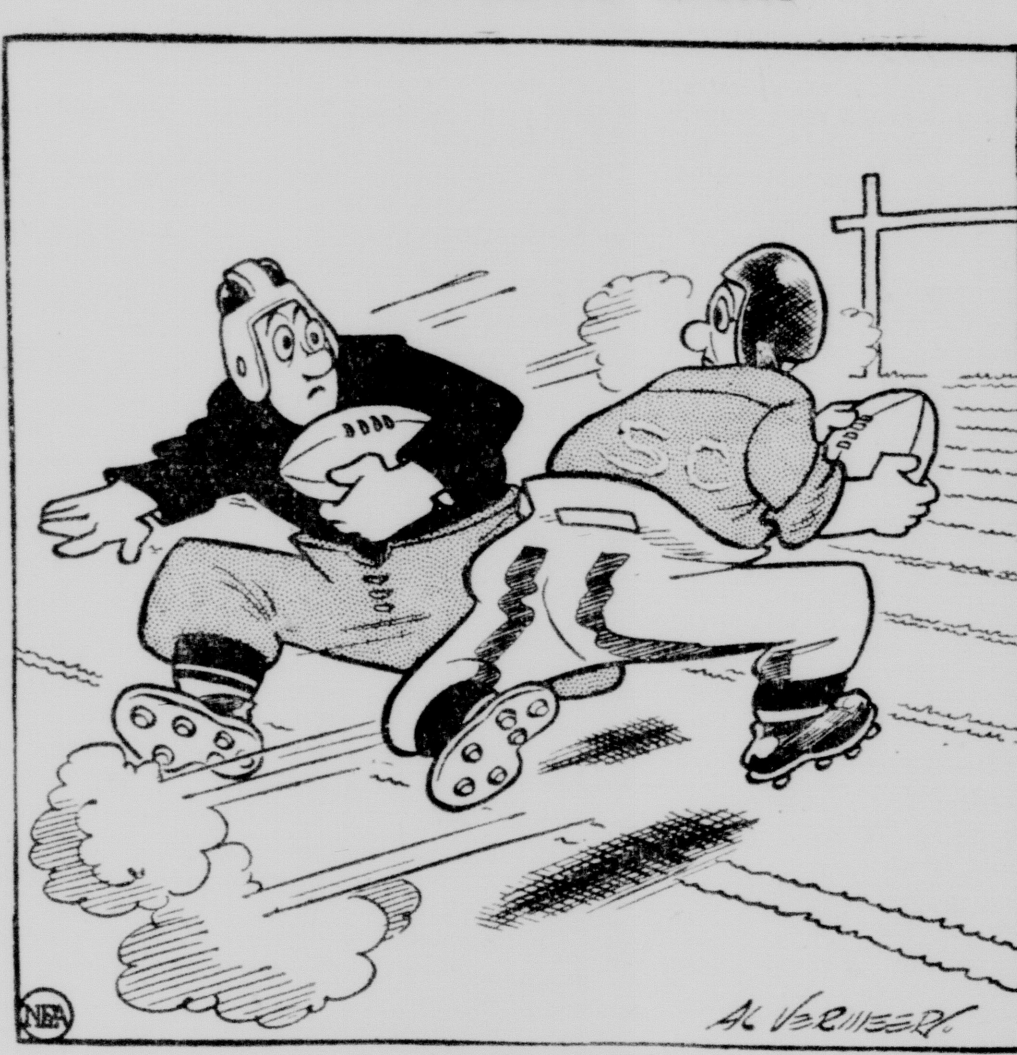

The semi-windup is going to bring together Ralph Garbaldi of St. Louis and Don Cirro of Havana, Cuba, who claims titles from his island.

Opening the show will be a special event between Calvin Reese, St. Joseph, Mo., and Geo. Bruckman of Washington, D. C. Both the supporting matches should be crowd pleasers according to Gus Karas, who watched the wrestlers.

Hornets Lost To Tipton, Score 5 to 2

The Smithton Hornets slipped in the first inning in their second playoff game with Tipton at Smithton Sunday and allowed four runs to cross the plate, which proved to be enough to win. The game ended with the Hornets trailing 5 to 2. Doc Wolfe pitched a very nice game for the Tipton club, allowing only four hits, striking out 8 and had only momentary loss of control, hitting one batter while not walking a man. Two of the Hornets hits were secured by Im Eddy, who also scored both runs after stealing second and third both times.

Fred Arbogast settled down after the stormy first inning when four hits, including a triple by Kline, put the game on ice, and pitched himself a fine ball game, giving up but five hits the rest of the way. He also didn't walk a man and struck out 6 batters.

The game was anything but tight with each team making five errors. Smithton left nine base runners stranded, finding it hard to connect against the left handed slants of Wolfe.

Kline again proved himself the leading hitter, connecting 3 times in 5 times at bat. He was closely followed by Eddy who had two for three. One of Kline's three hits was a double.

Following the game a coin was tossed to decide the site of next Sunday's game. Smithton won the toss and took the home field for the last game of the season. A large crowd witnessed the game Sunday, with a great number of Tipton rooters accompanying the team.

Score by innings:

The Daily Washington Merry-go-Round

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—This is going to be what editors call a “think” column. Ordinarily, editors pay me not to think. I am supposed to report what the Washington bigwigs think and talk about behind closed doors or in White House inner sanctums. Therefore, as far as today's column is concerned, editors won't get their money's worth.

This column is an attempt to examine the most vital question facing the nation—how we can avoid war with Russia.

Naturally I have been doing a lot of thinking about this. So have other people. Mr. Wallace's letter to President Truman on Russia has made people think more than ever before, which was one reason I published it.

A thinking public is the best guarantee possible of good government, and sound foreign relations; and personally as a result of the opinion that the American people do more and clearer thinking about our problems than Washington realizes. Usually they are far ahead of their government.

Furthermore, if wars were left to the people, there never would be war. This is true not merely of the American people, but all people.

In all the world's history I doubt if there ever was a war which was started by the people. It's just psychologically impossible for the people to initiate anything as drastic as war.

Russian People vs. Kremlin
War has to be made by kings or dictators or governments. That, of course, is the great danger about Russia. Unfortunately, in Russia—as with Germany in 1914 and 1938—a handful of men can start war, despite the fact that the Russian people are as sick and bored and disgusted with war as any in the world.

This fact, plus the giant army maintained by Russia, plus the frenzied rebuilding of munitions factories throughout the Soviet zone is the basic reason for Jimmy Byrnes' get-tough policy. It is also why I have reluctantly agreed with him. After exercising considerable patience, Byrnes came to the conclusion that the only language understood and spoken by the Kremlin not necessarily the Russian people) is a show of firmness backed by force.

However, you can't beat someone with nothing. You can't cure a dangerous ill with no healing medicine. You can't remain on the edge of the battlefield making faces and waving weapons indefinitely. Sooner or later someone is going to retreat, advance or fire a shot. Then the real trouble starts.

Therefore, without deserting the Byrnes policy of straight-arming Russia, we have to go further and find a more constructive policy that will occasionally let us rest our arm.

5 Year Plan
In this connection I propose as my humble contribution to improving the peace of the world, a five-year plan for friendship with Russia.

The Russians are strong for 5-year plans. This is a language they speak and understand. So let's take a page from their book and work out a 5-year plan for peace and friendship.

At the end of five years the plan renews automatically, unless one side gives notice—and that notice automatically would be a warning of potential war.

Aim of this 5-year plan would be to cement good will between the Russian and American peoples, to put them on the same basis as the British and American people, to build up so much good will that no group of men in the Kremlin could hastily or wantonly declare war. The American and British people would kick out any president or prime minister who proposed war between them, and what the American and Russian people need is a 5-year breathing space to start getting similarly acquainted.

Here are some of the planks I would put in the platform of our 5-year plan for peace with Russia:

Moratorium on Arms
1. Declare a 5-year moratorium on all rearmament. This would leave the Red army much bigger than ours, but our navy vastly bigger than theirs, in addition to which we have more airplanes, more factories, and—most of all—sneezed at—the A-bomb.

2. Teach the Russian language for at least one year in every American high school, and English for one year in the schools of Russia. Language is the greatest aid of all to understanding.

DEVIL'S LAUGHTER

XXVI
AT Mark's insistence, I went to my room, though I knew I could not sleep. And as I left I heard Mark say to Ellen, “It was always too harsh with the lady,” his voice aching with remorse. And I heard Ellen's voice trying to soothe him, and Colin still wandering through the lanes of childhood.

I closed my eyes and tried to sleep, to lie shivering, instead, convinced that in spite of all I could do Colin would not recover. But he did recover, and the doctor, when he came, was most complimentary about the care I had given him.

“Dragged him back from the dead, Doctor,” Ellen told him, sniffing and wiping her eyes.

And Mark said, “I’ll never forget what you’ve done, Cecelia. For years you’ve been the one bright spot in this house and now believe me, I am grateful to you.”

Unbelievable, this from Mark Fitzgerald, the austere professor whom I had always feared a little.

With this and the knowledge that Colin was out of danger, my heart was like a living thing once more, not dead way down inside me. I could sing and laugh. And I could sleep when my head touched the pillow.

My patient was recovering rapidly. And no spoiled brat in the children's ward, no cantankerous oldster on the men's floor nor wealthy neurotic woman in one of the expensive rooms at Saint Gregory's could run me as ragged as Colin Fitzgerald did during this time. He wanted me there beside the bed at all times, there was nothing either Ellen or Mark could do to please him. Sometimes he was content to have me merely sit beside him, but more often I had to wait on him. Some services he demanded, to be sure, were necessary, but a great many more were not.

I HAD to help feed him long after I suspected he was well able to do it himself. He was eternally asking me to fix his pillows, to tuck in blankets already tucked in. He had me read to him, poems for the most part, until my voice was strained to a whisper. And once, when carried away by the exquisite beauty of some line I paused and I looked up to ask if he, too, felt as I did about it, he said, “I love to watch your mouth when you read. You have a lovely mouth, Cecelia.”

I threw the book down and marched from the room in a temper. Nor did I go back until that evening when Ellen brought me a scribbled note reading: “My dear Miss Hart: If you come back at once I promise to be the ideal patient. If not, I shall report you to the medical association or the Red Cross or something. I am sure my temperature is below normal. Pathetically, the poor unfortunate man in the red room, P. S. I have smoked three cigarettes already today. One must do something.”

I went back at once and stood in the doorway, trying to look severe. He gazed back at me serenely.

“Oh, there you are,” he said. “What have you been doing? I missed you.”

“I shampooed my hair and had a nice nap—a nice rest from you,” I told him. “And I have here a letter from Saint Gregory's telling me that I am to return as soon as possible. There's a flu epidemic in Barrington and the hospital is crowded.”

He said nothing, just lay there, his dark eyes fixed on me. But I felt myself reddening under his gaze and my heart began acting queerly. I came into the room and sat down beside the bed and took out my knitting, glad to have something to do so that I would not have to meet his eyes again.

“So you're leaving me, little Saint Cecelia,” he said quietly after a moment's silence.

“They say it's a bad epidemic,” I told him. “Every available nurse will be needed. And you're really well on the road to recovery.”

“Of course,” he said dryly. “All I need now is to take care of myself. You know,” he added, “I had an odd fancy while I was delirious, or whatever it is I was doing.”

“Yes,” I lifted my eyes then and looked at him.

“Yes,” he said. “I thought I kissed you and you—slapped me.” And now there was no doubt about the color rushing into my face.

“People imagine all sorts of things when they're ill,” I told him, knitting hastily away on the sweater.

“You haven't taken my temperature tonight,” he said after another pause.

I laid down my knitting. “I'm sure it's normal,” I told him. But I got the thermometer and proceeded to prove it to him.

And then, when I had assured him that it was indeed normal, he reached up suddenly and drew my face down to his and kissed me hard on the lips. And the thermometer fell to the floor and broke into bits.

“That wasn't delirium,” he said softly, as he released me. “Don't look like that, Cecelia. I'm not the first man to fall in love with his nurse.”

cere about avoiding war with Russia.

The plan would not conflict with the United Nations, or in any way weaken the present Byrnes policy. We would continue to be just as firm as ever if Russia got high-handed with another nation's territory. But while being firm, we can also be friendly.

So far we have done a lot of talking, but little acting. We have talked about propaganda broadcasts to Russia and various other piddling moves. But at no time have we wrapped up a big, appealing package and said to the Russians: “Here is a sincere, from-the-heart fifty-fifty proposition of friendship, guaranteed for at least 5-years—we hope much longer. Take it or leave it.”

Certainly, it's worth the gesture. And if it is turned down,

Wordless, I fled, not even stopping to pick up the broken pieces of the thermometer. Fled to my own little room, where I lay across the bed and hid my flaming face. Small difference then between the little 17-year-old girl I remembered and the nurse of 23 I had fancied so mature.

Send Wallace to Moscow

6. Exchange 25,000 students between the two countries the first year, 50,000 the second, 100,000 the third and so on. This would be difficult at first, but in the long run it would build up a guarantee of friendship, which no dictator could surmount with war.

7. Organize U.S.-USSR sports contests, with teams visiting back and forth. When I worked in the Balkans after the last war, we had difficulty keeping the younger generation Albanians and Serbs from fighting—as their parents had for hundreds of years—until we taught them to play football. Then they were so absorbed they forgot their other feuds.

8. Send Henry Wallace as U. S. ambassador to Moscow. Whether you agree with him or not, he is a sincere, idealistic seeker of peace who might convince the Kremlin that the American people really desire peace. Actually, that is the biggest job of all—selling the Soviet government on peace.

These are just a few planks in a 5-year plan for peace and friendship—a plan which could be put across if we are really sincere.

If Stomach Gas or Sour Food Taste Robs You of Sleep

Here's How You May Help, Whether You Eat 500 Pounds or 2000 Pounds of Food In a Year

You can't feel cheerful, be happy and sleep well, if your stomach is always upset. As age advances the "old stomach" needs more help. The reason is this: Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula, which contains very special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with over-doses of soda and other alkalis to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Machines That Almost Think Will Be Shown

At National Business Show in Grand Central Palace

By Sam Dawson
NEW YORK, Sept. 30—(AP)—The stenographer and Joe the bookkeeper will have a chance Monday to view new wonders in office machines that were kept under wraps during the war and others that were monopolized by the armed services.

At the National Business show in Grand Central Palace they will see: Typewriters operated by radio from another part of town, or from a train, plane or automobile. Recording discs on which traveling salesmen can dictate their reports while they drive.

Detectors, like a burglar alarm, that warn of fires before they start. Machines that figure out Mr. Whiskers' cut, while they tabulate and total large payrolls and print slips for old age benefit and other deductions, all in one operation.

Not to mention a new carbon paper that will not curl when soaked in water—which may help solve the popular puzzle about writing under water, with those new pens.

First In Five Years
The National Business Show will run from Sept. 30 to October 5. After being suspended for five years, the show will feature war-time developed machines and methods now being made available for post-war business offices.

The New York Telephone company will demonstrate its mobile telephones, first tried out in St. Louis taxicabs, combining wireless with wire phone service.

International Business Machine Corp. will display for the first time the executive model of the electronic typewriter with proportional spacing. An "I," for example, does not take up much space as an "M," as on ordinary typewriters, but only a third as much space, as in this newspaper.

Unusual Device
Dictaphone Corp. will demonstrate the device for recording telephone conversations which recently led to much ethical debate in legislative halls.

B. F. Goodrich Co. will exhibit Koroseal upholstered office furniture that can be cleaned with soap and water, that will resist ink and be wrinkle free.

Globe Wireless, Ltd. will display the radio-type, high-speed typewriter by which a reporter, for example, can write his account at the scene of the fire and have it reproduced simultaneously in the newspaper office.

Dictograph Products, Inc., will show the fire detector for homes or small businesses without night watchmen. Set up near furnaces or other danger spots, the machine starts a loud clamor when temperatures rise to the danger point.

Payroll Machine
The "Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. will display the machine for handling large payrolls which enters names and amounts, totals the payroll, prints the deduction slip and the withholding tax receipt.

The Sound Scribe Corp. will demonstrate portable dictation-disc sets for automobile installation, so that salesmen can dictate reports while journeying between calls, and then mail to the home office the indestructible records the machine inscribes.

Underwood Corp. will show for the first time a new method for speedy handling of department store charge accounts.

During the show, the New York chapters of the National Office Management Association and the National Association of Cost Accountants will hold forums at which industrial leaders will discuss new office methods and management.

Travelogue At Rotary Club
S. Ray Sweeney, of Warrensburg, will be the speaker at the noonday meeting of Rotary Monday at the Bothwell hotel, and will give a travelogue of a trip to California.

Mr. Sweeney, who is with the Sweeney-Phillips funeral home in Warrensburg, has been in business thirty-nine years. He is a former president of the Chamber of Commerce in that city, Past Master of the Masonic Lodge, Past High Priest of the Royal Arch Chapter, Past Commander of the Knights Templar and Past Exalted Ruler of the Elks Lodge. He is also a member of the Presbyterian church.

Ex-King Carol Looks Longingly Toward Europe

By Hoyt Ware
RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 30—(AP)—Ex-King Carol of Romania looks longingly back toward Europe as he strolls daily along Copacabana beach, meditatively puffing a cigarette through a long stemmed holder.

Whether the former ruler will leave soon for his prewar villa in France—closer to the political scene in Romania—seems to depend to a large extent on the precarious health of his tall, slender, auburn-haired companion, Mme. Elena Magda Lupescu.

The twice-exiled former monarch personally has had nothing to say about his plans, but close friends say that he wants to go to France. In public he has an invariable reply: "No comment."

Carol and Mme. Lupescu lead a quiet life in the warm climate of this picturesque capital where tall gray mountains slope down to the blue ocean and nobody bothers at all about royalty. They seldom venture out of their beachfront hotel and rarely appear together at public affairs.

Fond of Night Clubs
But Carol is fond of night-clubbing and he can be seen almost every night at his table for four in the Golden Room or the Midnight Room of the Hotel Copacabana Palace where he dwells in luxury. Carol always is accompanied by Mme. Lupescu, the royal chamberlain, Ernest Urdreanu, and Mme. Urdreanu.

Mme. Lupescu frequently attends the opera or a concert with the ex-king, but always in the company of Urdreanu and his young and attractive wife, or other intimate friends. The royal couple seldom entertains.

Prince Dom Pedro Esperanza de Orleans e Braganca, heir to the nonexistent Brazilian imperial throne, and his wife are among the friends of Carol and Mme. Lupescu along with a small and exclusive international set from continental Europe.

Rarely Dances
Small bridge games, intimate dinner parties and occasional concerts comprise the usual social activity together with Carol's regular attendance at his favorite night club. He rarely dances, preferring to look on, idly puffing a cigarette.

Carol, who will be 53 October 16, exhibits none of the stormy temperament that accompanied his political career and frequent Romantic interludes as heir apparent and later as king of Romania.

Mme. Lupescu, for whom Carol renounced his right to the throne in 1925 and with whom he fled his country as king in 1940, is more friendly. She always nods pleasantly to acquaintances and even to strangers whom she happens to meet. The ex-monarch companies built the yards, Todd built the ships. Then things began to happen fast—$120,000,000 order for 60 ships from the British, in 1941, shared with Bath Iron works; the start of the Liberty ship program the same year.

Kaiser was finishing up his Grand Coulee dam project about that time. He had a labor force of 6,000 men. It was then that he became really, seriously interested in shipbuilding and sponsor—what is principal executive—for the Six Companies in their shipbuilding enterprises.

The break with Todd came in February, 1942. Kaiser started Richmond, Cal., yard No. 3 and didn't take Todd in. It was to be a repair yard, and invade Todd's post-war shipping field.

In the split, the Six Companies gave up their Houston, South Portland, and other eastern yards, and Todd left the west. The Six Companies themselves began to go separate ways about 1944, as Kaiser became more and more interested in industrial projects—steel, aluminum, magnesium, automobiles and so on.

It was to lead to Kaiser's big post-war expansion. Community News From Smithton
